“...an essential reference guide”

This award-winning reference guide contains copyright guidelines to help you navigate your way through US copyright law. It’s about getting permission to use copyrighted materials for your book, blog, website, and other published works. The copyright guidelines in the book address questions such as “What are the copyright laws that impact my work?”

The book identifies copyright protection a copyright owner receives from US copyright laws. It includes examples details on how to get copyright license for graphics, photographs, text, song lyrics, comic strips, maps, et cetera. And it illustrates how to manage and document the permission acquisition process.

Booklist Review

“Although the subtitle indicates independent publishers and their support providers as the intended audience, this is an excellent overview for school and academic librarians and educators as well. The 20 short, topic-focused chapters cover everything from copyright-infringement basics, to whether permission needs to be asked to use a work, to finding and using content created by others. A clear layout and readable screen captures add to the book’s usefulness. As the authors note, they provide information about issues but not legal advice. This book would make a great addition to any library’s copyright section, both for circulation and for staff use.”

Esther Sinofsky
Booklist Review
October 1, 2013

Copyright Clearance for Creatives
A guide for independent publishers and their support providers

METADATA

Reference/Writing/Legal
LCCN: 2001012345
Description:
❖ Paperback, 8.5” X 11”, 192 p
❖ 4-color interior on 80# paper
❖ 12 pt C1S artboard cover with gloss film laminate
❖ PDF, Kindle & ePUB versions

Authors: Joyce L. Miller & Dr. C. Daniel Miller
Publisher:
Integrated Writer Services, LLC
4505 S. Yosemite St. #418
Denver, CO 80237
http://thecopyrightdetective.com
List: $29.95

Library Discounts:
Discounts of 45% for library purchases at http://bit.ly/SxgzyY. Receive an additional 2% discount by sending a purchase order to dan@TheCopyrightDetective.com or fax to 303.221.7131 with “Library Purchase” in the subject line. Books are usually ship within 3 business days.
Joyce L. Miller is a copyright specialist and consultant to writers, authors, independent publishers, and their support teams. She is an award-winning author and an educator with over twenty years experience in publishing, copyright, and copyright compliance. Most recently, she co-authored Copyright Clearance for Creatives, an essential guidebook about copyright issues for the creative community.

She has served as intellectual property manager, first for NASA’s Classroom of the Future, and later for the Center for Educational Technologies, NASA’s principal research and development center for educational technologies. She has served as associate editor for an academic/trade technology journal, The Technology Transfer Journal. Joyce has created and been instrumental in the oversight of policies encompassing best practices, processes and procedures for copyright compliance issues at the university level as well as at government research and development centers. For more details, check out her LinkedIn profile at www.linkedin.com/in/joycelmiller.

Dr. C. Daniel Miller is a co-founder and co-owner of Integrated Writer Services, LLC, an independent publishing consulting service. He has served in roles of dean of board member, vice president, and president of the Colorado Independent Publishers Association (CIPA). He currently consults on business aspects of independent publishing. Most recently, he co-authored and published Copyright Clearance for Creatives.

He has been a technology consultant to architects to design computer and telecommunications infrastructures. He was the founding president of the Center for Educational Technologies; the executive director of NASA’s Classroom of the Future; a university professor and university department chair; an educational researcher, a K-12 classroom teacher, and a US Air Force radar technician. He most recently has embarked on a new venture as a project manager and researcher to discover relevance in large unstructured data. For more details, check out his LinkedIn profile at www.linkedin.com/in/cdanielmiller.